"GAMES PEOPLE PLAY: New York" SELLS OUT!

Both screenings for James Ronald Whitney's latest film, "GAMES PEOPLE PLAY : New York," an extreme-reality film that made it's premiere at the CineVegas International Film Festival 2003 as part of the Jackpot World Premiere line-up in Las Vegas, resulted in sell-out crowds.

GLAMOUR

"An uproarious (and surprisingly subversive) satire that manages to be as intriguing, salacious and fun as the genre it's satirizing (not to mention a helluva a lot sexier). Mix FEAR FACTOR with the REAL WORLD, add a screen load of naked, buff young actors and throw in a third-act twist worthy of a spy novel and you have some idea of what's in store in James Ronald Whitney's mind-bending new film."

—Jim Baker

Chicago Tribune

"I was very impressed by James Ronald Whitney's consistently surprising Games People Play, which kept audiences guessing...in his "extreme reality" show, Whitney forces viewers to come to grips with their own willingness to accept voyeurism and self-flagellation as entertainment."

—Gary Dretzka,

InStyle "Games People Play' is amazing, intense, sly, sexy and weirdly innocent— weirdly guilty too; but mostly it was a trip without a seat belt. Everyone in the world wants to cry and show their dick even the women."

—Tim Allis
